General distance learning procedure for students

- According to the regulations of the University of Debrecen, the Faculty of Informatics organizes distance learning from 23 March 2020 until its withdrawal.
- During distance learning, students are not allowed to enter the educational building.
- During distance education, the Faculty of Informatics will use the Moodle e-learning system of the University of Debrecen for official course administration. All university students have access to the system.

Moodle

- The content of the curriculum to be taught does not change, the provisions of the accepted syllabus at the beginning of this semester shall continue to apply. However, the way of learning is adapted to technical possibilities.
- The continuously updated <https://inf.unideb.hu/en/distance-learning> website provides support for distance learning.
- Lecturers will register course materials continuously in the e-learning system. Students may use the course materials for their own learning purposes only, complying with copyright and GDPR provisions.

Lectures (all forms of training)

- The content of the presentations are the same as the professional material previously published in syllabus.
- During distance learning, the lecturer, following schedule provides 1 online consultation time per minimum 3 lectures throughout the lecture (typically 100 minutes). Online availability times will be registered in Moodle.
- Replacement of lectures happens as usual: by replacing of the lecturer. In default of replacement, new appointment will be made with the students and the differences will be recorded in the Moodle system.

UNIVERSITY of
DEBRECEN

- The lecturers supplement the material of the lectures with a performance evaluation that is suitable for the students to continuously measure their progress. Students are asked to take advantage of these distance learning tools that enable active learning during the term.
- During the 1st week of distance learning, each lecturer will ensure the online presence at the time of the class for the duration of the briefing.

DEBRECEN

Practices / labs (all forms of training)

- The same requirements are valid to the holding of practices (seminars) and labs.
- All practices, labs will be held at their scheduled time. Tutors will provide an online consultation time in at least 50% of the duration of the practice / lab at the time of the class. The exact times will be indicated by the tutor in the Moodle system.

UNIVERSITY of
DEBRECEN

- The tutor prepares and provides an electronic curriculum as an extra solution in addition to any other forms through the distance learning system.
- The student is required to report on the progress of the practice / lab curriculum at regular intervals set by the tutor. At most 3 weeks may pass between two subsequent reports. Typical form may be the solution of homework assignments or performing practical tests. The method of implementation will be indicated in Moodle.

We call your attention that, due to the high virulence of the disease, young people – while being symptom-free carriers or having mild symptoms only – can represent a direct threat to the lives of those in the older generations; therefore, the responsibility of young people is uniquely important, even in a historic scale, toward the elders, including their own relatives!
